

Table1 Factors associated with ambivalence

Primary category	Subcategory	Mid-level category	Lowest category
Factors related to genetic counseling
	Lack of information
		Inadequate support by medical staff up to taking NIPT
			Lack of neutrality in genetic counseling Lack of NIPT information from family physician before genetic counseling Family physician's response
		Lack of information in case of positive result if the pregnancy was terminated if the pregnancy was continued follow-up support to positive result
	Lack of psychological care adapted to individual needs
		Lack of psychological care at genetic counseling
		Lack of genetic counseling at the appropriate moment
Environmental factors
	Lack of awareness and education about diversity
	Insecurities on raising the child
		Insecurities for the future
			After the parents' death Impact on the siblings
		Vague insecurity
			Insecurities for the child-rearing environment Familiarity with challenges of living with disabled person
	Lack of social support systems for people with disabilities
Increased anticipatory anxiety
	Time related anxiety
	Anxiety about test accuracy		